In Kiev, three men knocked bitcoin from Alexei Sherstnev, who is engaged in cryptocurrency trading and advice on this topic.

The victim wrote about this on his Facebook page.

"Torture for Bitcoin. Torture for 3 hours. They demanded Bitcoin. Three strong people. They beat me, intimidated me, promised to kill them," Sherstnev said.

He said that the incident occurred on the evening, September 4, in the premises of the Santa Muerte club on Yaroslaviv Val Street. Sherstnev was contacted by a man who asked to meet with him for advice on cryptocurrencies, saying that he knew an investor who was ready to invest in Bitcoin.

It is noted that the first meeting with the alleged investor occurred on August 25. On it, Sherstnev was asked to show how the Bitcoin wallet and the transfer of funds work. At the same time, the next meeting was scheduled for September 4.

Alexey said that he was kept in the bar for about three hours, demanding to transfer 10-12 Bitcoins to their account, which is about $ 44,000.

At the same time, he outwitted the attackers, convincing them to send an SOS signal from his phone. Moreover, he managed to photograph one of them.
